Scott A. Edelman is Chairman of Milbank LLP and a member of the firm's Litigation & Arbitration Group. Recognized as one of the country's top litigators and corporate advisers, he specializes in high-stakes, bet-the-company litigation and trials across several substantive areas of the law, including securities, commercial and white collar.

Primary Focus & Experience

While serving as Chairman of Milbank, Mr. Edelman maintains a busy and active litigation practice, which includes trials, appeals, white collar and regulatory matters, and corporate governance issues. Over the course of his career, Mr. Edelman has taken more than 20 cases to trial and argued dozens of appeals, accumulating a slew of honors along the way. He has tried dozens of civil and criminal cases representing numerous corporations and individuals.

In 2017, Mr. Edelman was inducted as a fellow into The American College of Trial Lawyers (ACTL). Mr. Edelman has successfully led trial teams in a string of high-profile victories.

In 2024, Mr. Edelman successfully represented a criminal defendant in New York State Supreme Court. The case arose out of an allegation made by Don Henley of the Eagles that handwritten lyrics for the song "Hotel California" had been stolen from Mr. Henley. After two weeks of trial, the prosecution agreed to dismiss the case against Mr. Edelman's client.

In 2023, Mr. Edelman represented BMI (an organization that represents the interest of songwriters in the United States) in a five-week trial that resulted in BMI obtaining a 138% increase in the rate paid to songwriters by Live Nation, AEG and other live concert promoters.

In 2021, Mr. Edelman represented Auen Therapeutics in defending a billion dollar claim in which the plaintiff, Highland Capital Management, sought to invoke theories of veil piercing and alter ego to hold Auen responsible for the non-payment of notes issued by another company. Mr. Edelman successfully obtained a directed verdict against the plaintiff at the conclusion of its case.

In 2016, Mr. Edelman secured a significant victory against the DOJ on behalf of Broadcast Music, Inc. (BMI) on music licensing affecting the more than $2 billion music performing industry, which garnered him recognition by The American Lawyer as "Litigator of the Week." He also prevailed on behalf of BMI in a trial victory against Pandora in 2015 in a music licensing rate case that set the new market rate for all digital music services and awarded BMI a significant fee increase of revenue from Pandora.

On behalf of Citi Global Markets in 2014, Mr. Edelman secured an injunction preventing an arbitration under FINRA in a high-profile case brought by a Saudi investor. Mr. Edelman also won a major trial victory for Cerberus Capital Management related to the multi-billion-dollar merger with United Rentals in the first M&A litigation arising out of the troubled credit markets to proceed to trial in Delaware in 2007.
